WUE Test Lab receives certification from NAIL

The WUE test lab recently achieved a milestone when the prestigious NAIL organization (Association of North American Independent Laboratories for Protective Equipment Testing) accredited the test lab for the testing of insulating gloves, sleeves, blankets, line hose, covers, hot sticks and live line tools, insulating plastic guards, insulated by-pass jumpers and portable grounding jumpers. WUE received the accreditation after successfully passing an in depth audit by NAIL and demonstrating compliance to all ASTM testing standards and generally accepted written testing and inspection processes. The test lab had to be a fully functioning lab for two years before having the audit conducted. WUE is grateful to the many customers that are successfully using the lab for their monthly, quarterly or yearly testing requirements. The test lab also builds new grounds and jumpers as well as meter loop assemblies.

WUE UPDATE

Two new members have joined the WUE family (now 67 members strong). Wells Electric Coop from Wells, NV and Raft River Electric from Malta, ID were recently approved as members.

New employees recently added to the staff at the WUE Brighton operation include; Chris Bennett (Director of Purchasing), Adam Hawkes and Eric Royer (Inside Distribution sales), Lisa Seachris (Purchasing Assistant) and Todd Miller (Warehouse receiving lead person).

Solomon recently announced that their services division can now recycle and dispose of SF6 gas. This is another service being provided as Solomon continues to add value to electric utility customers. WUE and Solomon have a strategic partnership. Please call your WUE inside sales rep or account manager for more information.
